FEDERATED CHAMBER OF COMMERCE TO HAVE HEADQUARTERS AT ALBANY

Other Proposals, Including Industrial and Commercial Survey of Hudson Valley, are Referred To Member Chambers For Vote—Canadian Canal a Camouflaged English Power Scheme, Asserts Wheaton.

At the fall meeting of the Hudson Valley Federated Chamber of Commerce at the Elks' Club house on Fair street, Thursday afternoon it was voted unanimously to establish a permanent office of the Federation at Albany and to employ an executive secretary, but consideration of other recommendations of the committee on survey and publicity were referred back to the constituent members of the Federated Chamber for vote, which will be taken by such members before the next meeting of the Federated Chamber to be held in December, probably at Newburgh.

The establishment of a permanent office was the first recommendation of the committee on survey and publicity of which Louis S. Coe, president of the Catskill-Shawangunk Mountain Association, is chairman. The report was read at the June meeting of the Federated Chamber at Nyack. The discussion on this proposition related principally to the location of the office, the committee having recommended that it be located in the city of New York. When the report was taken up for action, President George E. McCoy stated that in his judgment the organization had reached a point where it needed an executive secretary. The Federated Chamber must either advance or retrograde, and to retrograde was to die.

Discussing the report in general, County Judge Joseph M. Fowler, president of the Kingston Chamber of Commerce, said the Kingston Chamber considered the first recommendation perfectly proper. Sections 4 and 5 of the report, which recommended an industrial and commercial survey of the Hudson River valley, and estimating the minimum expense of the preliminary organization to be $20,000 and the maximum expense $40,000, opened a large field, said Judge Fowler. If the information obtained by the survey was to be of practical use and benefit, it must be followed up. Personally, he felt reluctant to speak on this matter on behalf of the Kingston chamber, and if there was a disposition on the part of other chambers to give further consideration to this feature of the report, Kingston would be agreeable to waiting until the next meeting for action.

A motion to consider the sections of the report separately was adopted. Ex-Mayor Wilbur of Poughkeepsie expressed his opinion that it would be unwise to commit the Federated Chamber to the plan unless there was a full representation of all the chambers of commerce. He did not believe that the members present realized the magnitude of this undertaking, and did not believe that these members had the moral right to commit their communities unless instructed so to do. He suggested that the report be referred back to each local chamber of commerce.

Chairman Coe said the report had been read at the Nyack meeting in June and at that time had been referred to each local chamber of commerce. The answer to that, said Mr. Wilbur, was that the report had not received adequate discussion or sufficient consideration. He did not believe anyone present was authorized to speak for the Poughkeepsie Chamber of Commerce. If this plan meant prosperity for the Hudson river valley, Poughkeepsie was for it, but to decide a matter of this magnitude without discussion was unwise. Personally, he believed the office of the Federated Chamber should be more centrally located, as at Poughkeepsie.

President Robert Bortner of the Tonawanda chamber replied that he was voting intelligently as to the place of the office, the members should know the cost which could not be told without a budget.

President R. A. Schatz of the Poughkeepsie Chamber said before making any statement as to joining the plan it was quite necessary to know what the program would be. Ex-Mayor Wilbur said the matter had been brought before their board and was laid on the table for lack of information. There had been a division of thought as to location of the office and expense.

Secretary Roy Smith of the Albany Chamber of Commerce said the Albany board of directors was opposed to having the office located in New York city. Not only was it impossible to get the proper Federated Chamber spirit and atmosphere in New York but the expense, at first anyway, would be at least 100 per cent more than in any other place. New York city offices would eat up an enormous part of the fund for office rent and living expenses of the secretary; most members never would know of it any more than a small part of the people it was intended to reach because it would have to be tucked away on the tenth floor of some skyscraper unless there was an immense fund for expense. Albany would be satisfied to see the office located in any city except New York.

At this point the Federated Chamber members were urged to establish the office at Poughkeepsie and Newburgh.

Judge Fowler of Kingston said that Kingston would not be behind and also would offer free quarters, etc., "and anything else the Federated Chamber requires."

Secretary G. W. Lemon of the Troy Chamber said Troy did not want the office because it realized Troy was too far up the river, but he suggested Poughkeepsie for central location.

Creswell McLaughlin of Cornwall-on-Hudson, in a characteristic speech, called attention to the fact that center of the Hudson valley was the center of the river, and said it was well known and generally recognized that the great majority of members and the greatest brain power of the valley was located here Poughkeepsie. He modestly intimated that Cornwall-on-Hudson supplied these qualifications.

Mayor Canfield of Kingston said that speaking locally, if the Federated Chamber wanted a location in the center of the river, Kingston could supply an old light house located in the exact center, which the government had been trying to sell without success, and the light house undoubtedly could be procured at a nominal rental.

But speaking seriously, said Mayor Canfield, the office should be located either at one end of the Hudson valley or the other. Certain features of the river could be carried on most advantageously in New York city, other features at Albany. If the office was to be located at any place between New York and Albany, the members should make the decision with a view to harmony in the future. The members must not consider the effect of location on the place where the office was to be located, but the effect on the Federated Chamber in the future. The real atmosphere necessary to actual development of the Hudson valley might not be obtained in New York, but there was a deeper consideration which should govern now, and that was the question of survey which necessarily would be accompanied and supplemented by legislation. The present movement would not be effective, so far as the waterway program was concerned, without legislative aid in the form of appropriations, and sooner or later the members must go to Albany to see the governor, the legislature and other state officials. As a matter of fact, it would be necessary for the Federated Chamber to keep in close touch with the state officials, and at Albany the state library and state officials afforded opportunity for research work which were unequalled elsewhere. Therefore, while Kingston gladly would have the office for the best interests of the Federated Chamber and because of the work to be accomplished here, thought Albany the best location, and moved that Albany be substituted in the committee's report in place of New York city. Secretary Hudson of the Kingston Chamber also spoke of the advantages afforded by Albany for research work and said that while he had been in favor of a New York city office at first, mature consideration led him to change his opinion.

Poughkeepsie's spokesmen withdrew the name of Poughkeepsie, which action was followed by the other cities which had offered themselves for the location of the Federated Chamber office, all the speakers adopting the views advanced by Mayor Canfield and Secretary Hudson, and the motion to substitute Albany for New York was adopted.

Secretary Smith of the Albany chamber said this action furnished evidence of the reason for the success of the Federated Chamber up to this time—the spirit of harmonious co-operation in matters vitally affecting the organization. He had suggested Albany in order to bring out full discussion, and it at any time a Federated Chamber wished to go elsewhere, it could feel at perfect liberty to do so, but for the present place, the Albany chamber would furnish free office with free light heat and janitor service, and free use of telephone for local calls.

On the question of adopting the balance of the report of the committee on survey and publicity, attention was called by one of the members to the fact that all the local chambers of commerce were not represented.

Ex-Mayor Wilbur of Poughkeepsie said the success of the movement did not depend on adopting the report at this session, but it did depend on the question whether each constituent member had a clear chance to express his opinion and reach a decision. In making the immediate adoption of the report he believed action was being taken too hastily and too rapidly. He believed the remaining recommendations should be referred back to the local chambers for discussion.

Thomas J. Conover of Kingston said that some of them who were now opposed to adopting the report had attended the June meeting at Nyack, when the report had been discussed thoroughly. The third members who attended that meeting had voted that action be deferred until the fall meeting in order that they could consult with the constituent members, but they had failed to consult. The future of the Hudson valley depends on this organization, he said. In Canada a definite plan had been adopted for a canal system, and while no pick had yet been put in the ground, Canada was seeking the aid of American capital through legislative action, and was spreading propaganda in favor of Canada, and adverse to New York state. The whole matter should be approved now.

At this point the question was raised whether constituent members had discussed the report and had given any instructions to the delegates present.

President Richard S. Barrett of the Catskill Chamber said that Catskill was instructed to vote against it.

Secretary Lemon of Troy said his chamber had not given any authority in the matter.

Ex-Mayor Wilbur of Newburgh said the Newburgh chamber had asked for further consideration and information.

Saugerties reported that its delegates had been instructed but only two or three were present.

Newburgh delegates said that unless the matter was discussed and discussion was based on definite information, the Federated chamber would be up against the same proposition later. Section 4 of the committee's report gave the cost of the commercial and industrial survey a wide range, a minimum of $20,000 and a maximum of $40,000. They suggested that the committee prepare a tentative budget.

Chairman Coe of the committee on survey and publicity replied that while the committee did not like delay, it felt that perhaps it was wisest to refer back the remaining paragraphs for further consideration. Some of the members seemed to labor under the impression that the $20,000 or $40,000 would come from their coffers, but he believed that the finance committee when it got to work could raise $100,000 and not ask any of the constituent members for one cent.

The motion to refer back the remainder of the report, with instructions that a vote be taken at the December meeting, was unanimously adopted.

The Waterway Situation.

Prior to taking up the report of the committee and publicity, the members listened to a brief address by H. W. Wheaton of New York city, who said that New York state waterways were not developed to their utmost capability. The Hudson river barge canals had facilities for handling twenty millions tons of freight. But the west and far west, he said, were in ignorance of the system of waterways already developed by New York state and thought that New York waterways were simply a development by politicians which afforded opportunities for squandering money. At present there was a vast amount of propaganda through the west favoring the establishment of waterways to the Atlantic ocean.

At Albany he had found a general belief among state officials that the proposed development of canals in Canada was being used simply as a shield for the development of electric power. In the west the farmers and manufacturers say they ought to go through New York state because of the inadequacy of New York waterways, but they were being led to believe that the building of Canadian canals and establishment of Atlantic seaboard terminals in Canada would solve the problem of transportation.

As a matter of fact, said Mr. Wheaton, the construction of the St. Lawrence canal was a pipe dream. It would cost the United States twelve million dollars to develop terminals on the Great Lakes, and the proposed St. Lawrence development was simply a scheme of British capitalists to develop electric power.

Our own people, said Mr. Wheaton, are more or less ignorant of our facilities. Our congressmen and our Federal officials do not know what New York state has done. This means that New York must carry on an educational campaign. It is a necessity wished on New York to educate the people, and industrial development in New York state can be affected only by development of the waterways.

The development of the port of New York cannot be carried on without the help of upstate; the Hudson valley cannot be developed without the help of the port of New York, and development of the waterways is dependent on the other two developments. The port of New York is tremendously interested, and success can be obtained only by co-operation of all sections.

Plan for Inspection Trip.

A report of the plan for an inspection trip by Federal officials and state executives was made by President John D. Dunlop of the Nyack Chamber of Commerce, chairman of the committee appointed at the recent Albany conference of various civic organizations interested in waterway development. He said that during the summer it had appeared that congress was being opportuned for money to be used for the development of the proposed Canadian drop waterway, which from the start seemed to be an impracticable scheme.

The state-wide conference at Albany had decided that the first step in the campaign of education necessary to inform the world of what New York state possesses was a trip through the Hudson valley and the barge canal, to which congressmen and governors of different states had been invited. Acceptances were received from at least two senators, and from congressmen and others who thereby indicated they were alive to what New York is doing.

Governor Miller, said Mr. Dunlop, had had in mind an itinerary along similar lines to that now proposed, but on a smaller scale, but he had

WINTERS BUY JOHN STREET PROPERTY

E. Winters' Sons, the John street music, news and book dealers, and expressmen, have purchased from John B. Rafferty and Michael D. Rafferty the three story brick building at No. 39 John street, between the Hotel Stuyvesant and the National Ulster County Bank, now occupied by the cigar and tobacco manufacturing and store of Henry J. Hoffman.

The building acquired by Winters' Sons is nearly opposite their present location in the Kingston Opera House block.

The new Winters building was erected twenty-five years ago by the late Howard Myer, who occupied the first floor and part of the second floor for his cigar and tobacco factory and store, the remainder of the building occupied by Spencer's Business School. It was sold by Mr. Myer in 1910 to John B. and Michael D. Rafferty, who continued the cigar and tobacco business there for several years, when they sold their business to Mr. Hoffman. The business school removed some time ago to its present location in the Forman building on the corner of John and Wall streets, since when the upper part has been occupied by pool parlors.

The building has an excellent business location and is one of the most substantially constructed business buildings in the city. The lower floor is 100 feet deep and the second and third floors have a depth of 88 feet.

The business of E. Winters' Sons was established by the late Edward Winters on North Front street and has occupied its present location at Nos. 36 and 38 John streets for more than fifty years. For many years the Winters store was also the office of the Western Union Telegraph Company and the news of the battles of the Civil War were received at the store. The first telephone line in Kingston extended from the present store to the store of the late William Winters in Rondout and was used in connection with the express business of each of the brothers. Later when the Bell Telephone Company established a telephone line in Kingston, the central office was in the Winters store and continued there until after the Hudson River Telephone Company was organized and the business became of such magnitude as to require a separate central office, which was provided for the uptown section of the city in the Crosby building, corner of Wall and John streets.

SOUTHERN BANKER SLAIN WITH CLUB

By Telegram to The Freeman.

Coyers, Ga., October 7.—With a gaping wound in the head, presumably inflicted by a club, the body of Charles Reagin, president of the Bank of Rockdale, a small town near here, was found early today in the Yellow river after an all night search.

The hunt for Reagin's body was started when his automobile was found standing on a bridge across the river, the motor running and all lights burning. All four doors were open and upon the floor of the bridge was found the banker's knife and some silver coins.

FREEMAN TO BE ON TIME.

Will Not Wait For Ball Game Result Saturday.

The Freeman will not hold back the city edition on Saturday, as it has done for the past three days, in order to report the ball game. Employees have worked over time for several days and it would be asking too much to deprive them of their Saturday afternoon holiday. For three days the city edition has been from 10 to 60 minutes late, in order that the ball game might be published in full. Those not interested in baseball should be willing to suffer the delay that results in giving so much pleasure to those who are interested in the games. Now it is the turn of the "fans" to endure a little inconvenience tomorrow, if they are as good sports as those who care nothing for baseball news have been, there will be no complaints.

New World's Trotting Record.

Peter Manning, Irving Gleason's great five-year-old gelding Thursday afternoon at Lexington, Ky. trotted the fastest mile ever recorded in a race against time when he turned the oval at the Lexington track in 1:57.4. He was driven by Thomas W. Murphy of Poughkeepsie. Arion Gray, also starting against time, clipped a second and a half off the world's record for four-year-olds when Murphy piloted him around the oval in 1:58.1-2.

Trip to Highland.

Kingston Endorsements will journey to Highland this evening to attend the County C. E. Union in session in the Presbyterian church there. Those desiring to make the trip should be at the Central post office at 6:30 o'clock this evening, where conveyances will be in waiting.

In Police Court.

Vincent Van Bramer of this city, arrested this morning by Officer Joyce on a charge of speeding, pleaded not guilty and the hearing was adjourned until next Tuesday.

Edward Higgins, arrested on the complaint of his wife, was placed under $500 bail to pay his wife $2 a week.

FOOD AND FUEL FROM SUNSHINE

Great Achievements Possible If Science Can Master Secret.

WOULD ELIMINATE PLANTS

Whole Living World Is Dependent Upon Delicate Photochemical Reaction, Says Scientist—Coal Beds, Petroleum Wells and Natural Gas Merely Result of Light Energy Stored Up From Plant and Animal Life of Former Geological Periods.

When man learns the secret of the leaf and finds out how to make sugar, starch and cellulose by sunshine without the aid of plants, we shall enter upon a new era of chemistry with surprises and achievements equal to those that have marked the last half century of chemical history. Dr. Leo H. Baekeland, honorary professor of chemical engineering of Columbia university and inventor of "Bakelite," predicted in an address at the international meeting in New York of the American Chemical Society and the Society of Chemical Industry, of Great Britain.

Depend on Photochemistry.—"The photochemical action of the sun rays under the influence of the chlorophyll, or green matter of the plant leaves, brings about the most subtle creative chemical synthesis," Doctor Baekeland explained. "Carbon dioxide, a product of combustion, one of the ultimate destruction products of plant or animal life, combines with water under the action of sunlight. The first, or one of the first, products of this synthesis is formaldehyde; the latter, in its turn, inaugurates a succession of further chemical syntheses which result in the formation of sugars, starch, cellulose and other carbohydrates. No sun, no photochemical synthesis, no crops—no life! So that, after all, the whole living world is dependent upon a delicate photochemical reaction. Starvation on one hand, or abundance of crops and foodstuffs on the other, all are within the range of photochemistry.

"In the same way, our vast coal beds and our petroleum wells and our natural gas are merely the result of light energy stored up from the plant or animal life of former geological periods. This, in itself, ought to impress us with the enormous possibilities of photochemical synthesis. And yet, here is a field where the scientist or engineer has accomplished next to nothing. In the utilization of this marvelous energy, we have not gone much beyond the art of making photographs.

Who Will Show the Way?—"Where is the Faraday, the Ampere, the Leonardo da Vinci, or the Archimedes who shall show us how to use the sun rays for charging our electrical storage batteries, or who will teach us how to handle the photochemical action of sunlight, or to emulate nature in her delicate synthesis of plant life? Who will utilize this delicate method instead of our hitherto brutal processes of synthesis? Nature in her methods of plant life synthesis does not treat with boiling solutions of alkalies or strong acids; she uses no high temperatures nor strong electric currents. If we want to be successful in this direction, we shall have to utilize equipment possessing large exposed surfaces similarly to the leaves of plants. We may have to operate in rather dilute solutions instead of the concentrations which are ordinarily used in our present methods. We may have to find means for rapidly separating the formed products as fast as they accumulate. We may be compelled to work within narrow ranges of temperature, perhaps not exceeding those outside of which plant life stops."

MORE FRENCH MARRIAGES

New Double the Number in 1919, and Births Increase.

The number of marriages in France has doubled, the number of births increased, while fewer deaths are registered in 1920 than in 1919, the last full year of peace. This is shown by the official figures just published by the ministry of labor. The excess of births over deaths in 1920 was 160,790, as compared to 38,914 in 1919. The marriages totaled 623,549 in 1920 against 312,094 in 1919.

The significance of these figures is increased when it is remembered that the total population of France has decreased sensibly as a result of the war.

MAN HAS FOUR WIVES

Says "Babe" Led Him to Marry First Three—Fourth Was Love Affair.

Paul Greer of Cincinnati, O., is under arrest on a charge of bigamy. He has confessed that he had four wives. Officers said Greer admitted having married one woman from Indianapolis, Ind., and two from Cincinnati. Then he married Miss Ferris, also of Cincinnati.

"I deeply love Miss Ferris," he said. "She is the last. I hope she sticks by me. I was drunk every time I went to the altar before I got her."

Boy Killed When Kites Touches Cable. John Hawley, twelve years old, of Flint, Mich., died from the shock and burns received when a kite copper wire the lad was using for a kite string became entangled with a high tension electric cable.

Tarkenton's "Monsieur Boncaire," High School, Friday evening, Oct. 7.—Advertisement.

Paris is again setting the pace in the fall headwear for midday. The creation on top is the newest style from Paree. It is made of purple velvet, fashioned after the Russian and trimmed with graduated colored grapes around the front. Below is a black velvet and jet beaded chapeau which bids fair to prove popular with the elite this fall.

Immense Power of Lightning. Near New York city a huge oak on a hillside was torn into splinters by a bolt of lightning and some electrical engineering experts have been studying the size of the tree, the resistance it gave and the volume of electrical force to be required for its destruction. They agree there was not less than 100,000-horse power in the bolt that hit it.

"Association of Ideas." This phrase seems to have been used first by John Locke, an English philosopher, who lived in the seventeenth century, but the facts referred to were recognized as early as the time of Aristotle, when four ways by which the mind passes from one idea to another were discovered. These were known as association by similarity, by continuity, by contrast and by succession.

Sad Mistake. The family was away from town. Their house was in charge of a young maid. Occasionally an old woman came in to help with the cleaning. One day the maid opened the front door and was greeted by the angry woman. "I've been ringing and ringing and ringing," said the latter. "Why didn't you come?" "You keep on so regular," said the maid, "that I thought it was only the telephone."

Giving 'Em a Sample. "Ladies and gentlemen," said the chairman of the evening, "In a few minutes I shall introduce the gentleman who is to address you. It is not my function to deliver a speech at this time, but I shall just use up five or ten minutes so that you may know how good a speech you would have had to listen to were I the speaker and he the chairman."—Detroit Free Press.

KINGSTON, N. Y., OCT. 7, 1921.

The sinking of the battleship Alabama in the bombing tests of Tangier Island seems to confirm the most hopeful predictions of the aviation enthusiasts and certainly demonstrates once more what a deadly weapon for attack the airplane has become.

On the initial trip of the new air service between New York and Havana the four passengers were landed four times between Thursday and Sunday, were in the air only 19 hours and paid $250 each. Not a great deal quicker than steamer travel and very much more expensive.

William J. Bryan says "the New York newspapers think that unless a reform starts in New York it does not amount to anything, and no reform ever does start in New York." However that may be, a lot of half-baked reforms that deservedly got nowhere may be traced to the narrow-minded folk of the Gopher Prairies and Possum Trots.

We read that in Philadelphia whiskey is delivered in some cases by butcher boys but ordinarily just "in the same way milk and ice are delivered in homes." As usual Chicago is just a little ahead, for there, according to the latest reports, deliveries of intoxicants are made by police wagons. The Chicago chief of police even asserts that 50 per cent of his force is engaged in the bootlegging business.

The new steamship Southern Cross has arrived at New York preliminary to being put into the South American trade with a crew 100 per cent American. She is a sister ship to the steamer American Legion, also running to South American ports. The operation of the latter vessel has demonstrated that Americans can man such ships and run them successfully in competition with foreigners.

The peace treaties with the Central Powers, as reported from the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, contain every conceivable safeguard against European entanglements without the specific consent of Congress, and reserve every single right and privilege that America obtained as a result of the war. It is an ingenious individual indeed who can find in them anything detrimental to the welfare of the United States. They should be ratified without delay.

American genius is equal to almost any call. Machinery has been invented and processes devised by which sugar cane, from which the sap has been extracted, is ground into pulp and then pressed between rollers, coming out in the form of building boards one inch thick and twelve feet wide. If sugar cane can be utilized in this manner, why not corn stalks, also. With such material available, the building of small houses will become a matter of simplicity and expedition, and, moreover, there will be less drain upon our timber resources. Yankee ingenuity will meet any emergency.

PATERNALISM REPUDIATED.

There was both common sense and courage displayed by President Harding when, at the unemployment conference, he declared: "I would have little enthusiasm for any proposed relief which seeks either palliation or tonic from the public treasury."

How different that is from the policy "let the government do it" which has prevailed in this country for the past eight years. Every man who will stop to think knows that Harding is absolutely right. Aid from the public treasury would be, as the president declared, a cause of trouble rather than a cure. If the government undertakes to furnish employment for any, it will eventually be expected to furnish employment for all. If the government undertakes upon the policy of furnishing employment part of the time, there will be a constant increase in the demand for that sort of employment until the government will be expected to furnish employment all the time.

And everybody knows that the government is not an efficient employer. While there are undoubtedly exceptions to the rule, it is generally true that the government gets less for its dollar of expenditure than does the private employer. Government planning of work, government supervision of work, government execution of work are all inferior to the results accomplished where the incentive of competition and self-interest induce business-like management.

Mr. Harding displeased a lot of radicals when he expressed his judgment against a paternalistic solution of the unemployment situation. He knew he would displease that element of our population. But he had the courage to say what ought to have been said, even though he may make some political enemies thereby. He has made a far larger number of admirers by his statesmanlike course.

2. How far up-stream will salmon go to spawn?

3. When does the swan sing?

Answers to Previous Questions.

1. How does the cock partridge drum? And do both male and female drum?

The cock drums, to signal his mate. Ornithologists dispute the method of sound production, but opinion leans to the method described by Burroughs: "the partridge does not always drum upon a log; he frequently drums upon a rock of a stone wall, if a suitable log be not handy, and no ear can detect the difference. His drum is really his own proud breast, and beneath his small, hollow wings gives forth the same mellow, low thunder from a rock as from a log."

2. What do lobsters feed on? They eat living animal forms, fish, etc., that they catch. Lobsters also take dead animal matter found in the sea, even if it has begun to decay, as do also crabs.

3. What is the seventeen year locust?

It is not a locust, but a cicada which needs seventeen years (or about that) to develop from egg to winged form. In some localities favorable climate shortens the period. The female slits bark of twigs, inserts eggs, and when these hatch, the larva drops to the ground and burrows. It feeds underground until developed to the point where it must come out, when it climbs a tree trunk, slits its skin, and comes out winged.

REPORT ON AND GOLD DISCOVERIES IN ALASKA

Prospectors investigate Seepage on Cape Simpson—Tell of Vein at Girdwood.

A report of the discovery of a new oil area in Alaska and of a new gold strike near Girdwood, with quartz running $1,400 a ton on assay, is contained in dispatches to Seattle from the northern territory.

The gold strike has started a rush to Girdwood district, where six-year-old Addie Reno discovered a vein of free gold, according to a dispatch from G. J. Locke. The vein is on Penguin Creek, north of Girdwood. Andrew Miles, a prospector, struck a good vein between rhyolite slate, and the ledges are described as large and continuous.

The report of the oil area near Point Barrow is based on word from R. D. Adams, head of an oil prospecting party, which returned to Nome from Wainwright and Point Barrow.

"The oil seepages occur on two or three conspicuous hills of the barren and mountainous Cape Simpson," the dispatch says. "The largest seepage rises on a hill four miles southwest of the cape and more than a mile inland."

"Another smaller seepage was found on a hill 400 yards from the shore, approximately three miles northwest of Cape Simpson. The flow of oil down the hillside may be seen from the coast. The two main seepages are similar, the source being well up the hills. Both flow several hundred yards into lakes."

A Standard Oil party of prospectors which left Nome about the same time as the Adams party is now investigating in the same section.

"PRETTIEST GIRL IN AMERICA" TO BE WED

Six years ago a jury of photographers judged Miss Gertrude M. Fisher of Melrose Park, Pa., to be the prettiest girl in America. Of course she was deluged with proposals of marriage, as well as the usual offers to sell advertising rights to her photos. Recently it was announced that she is to marry Carl F. Lumber, Jr., a manufacturer of soft drinks of Philadelphia.

NAPOLEON TOMS NEGLECTED

First Resting Place at St. Helena Unmarked and in Disrepair.

Napoleon's original tomb on St. Helena has fallen into a sad state of disrepair since the body was removed in state to the Invalides in Paris eighty-one years ago, according to a letter received by Sir Lee Knowles, a former British cabinet minister, from a recent visitor to that remote island. "I walked the five and one-half miles uphill to Longwood, Napoleon's old home," the writer says, "and inspected his much neglected tomb which is down in a deep corner of a deep valley—just a slab covered with dirty white wash—no inscription whatever. The grave around was unkempt, and surrounded by a circle, about twenty paces in diameter, of tall trees, and there was nothing anywhere to tell a visitor when the body was removed or to whom the old tomb had belonged."

PRIEST'S GARB BRINGS FINE

Archbishop Appeals on Streets of Mexican City in His Garb.

Archbishop Francisco Orozco Jimenez, one of the high Roman Catholic prelates in Mexico, has been fined $100 by municipal authorities at Guadalajara for appearing on the streets in clerical garb. Police Chief Rivera recently ordered the arrest of all priests appearing on the thoroughfares in such garb, and several dangerous incidents are said to have resulted.

VITAMINES IN MILK AND EGGS DEPEND UPON FEED

Not Safe to Assume All Eggs and All Milk Are Unfailing Sources of Vitamines.

It is not safe to assume that all milk and all eggs are satisfactory unfailing sources of vitamins. Prof. J. S. Hughes, J. B. Fitch and H. W. Cane of the Kansas State Agricultural College declared at the American Chemical Society meeting in New York that the vitamin content of milk or eggs is determined largely by the quantity of vitamins in the food given the cows or hens producing the milk or eggs.

They found that, although a cow receiving dry feed low in vitamins may give a fairly abundant supply of milk, it is of such poor quality that if it is fed to her calves they will become blind and die.

In other experiments they discovered that eggs of low vitamin content laid by hens fed on low-vitamin food produce chicks that are not strong and vigorous. This fact, rather than the commonly blamed methods of incubation, may account for a large portion of the annual loss of half the eggs that the poultryman sets each year. Probably 300,000,000 eggs out of the 900,000,000 set each year in this country fail to produce strong chicks, and this represents a loss of over $12,000,000 a year.

These results indicate that as a rule the animal organism does not synthesize vitamins, but must obtain them from its food. If this is generally true, as seems probable from the experiments reported, it was not always sufficient that the mother is nursing her baby, but she must be sure that she is obtaining sufficient vitamin-containing foods.

In the milk experiments it was found that the water-soluble or anti-scurvy vitamins and the fat-soluble vitamins were those that were lacking, but that the anti-scurvy vitamin content was sufficient.

FRENCH AVIATOR CLAIMS RECORD FOR ALTITUDE

George Kirsch, French aviator, photographed after landing from a flight of 34,776 feet, or over 6 1/2 miles. Kirsch claims this is a world record for altitude. Maj. Rudolph Schroeder of the United States army is credited with the record, having risen to a height of 36,202 feet over Dayton, O., last year. At the "roof" of his flight Kirsch reported that his thermometer read 60 degrees below zero. The flight was made over the aerodrome at Bourret, France.

BURIED TREASURE NOT FOUND

Expedition in Search of Gold Buggy in Pinaki Falls.

Stolen gold plate, ingots and jewels believed buried on the South Sea Island of Pinaki, in the Paumotu group, near Papeete, Tahiti, evidently have not been found, according to word received at Papeete.

An expedition organized to go to Pinaki to get the treasure has, after several weeks' start, returned to Papeete empty-handed. While there are reports that the location has been established and another expedition with diving apparatus will return to the island, opinion is that nothing will come of it.

The story of the buried gold was one of mystery of the kind. It was said the treasure was stolen half a century ago from a Peruvian church, carried across the Pacific and hidden on the island. Some years ago, the reports said, an aged settler, one of the original miners, made known the location of the valuables just before he died in Sydney, N. S. W.

Widely Hidden in Hymenok. Several thousand quarts of merchandise which were discovered by a settler when a hurricane blowing from the southwest struck the island, were buried in a cave. The settler, who was named, buried the goods in the ground around the buried stock.

NOVEL "HOUSE ON WHEELS" ATTRACTS WIDE ATTENTION

Maneuvers With Perfect Ease on Mountain Roads, and Has Every Convenience.

As more than 15,000 automobiles entered Yosemite National park this season, you may be sure that every variety from $14,000 beauties, was represented. Despite this tremendous assortment, there was no dispute as to which attracted most attention—R. E. Jeffery of Piedmont put more cricks in necks with his "House on Wheels" than anybody else.

Apparently bulky and cumbersome, Mr. Jeffery's mobile residence maneuvered along the mountain roads with perfect ease, its owner sitting at the steering wheel in an arm chair, an exhibition of solid comfort. The body of the remarkable vehicle was designed by the owner and built of fiber board, so that it was strong yet light. This body was mounted on a chassis of the vintage of 1905, 24-25 horsepower, which Mr. Jeffery declared had not given him three days' repair work in the 16 years he has owned it.

Peeking through the cretonne curtains which screened the car's glass windows, you saw a wonderfully effective use of space. Over the hood had been built a table with two tops, one about three inches above the other. The "top top" was used as a dining table or writing table, and just below it the other table held salt and pepper shakers and other housekeeping equipment. The arm chair, movable, of the owner, sat at the steering wheel. To his left was a gasoline stove with two burners, and next to that a built-out closet. Across the rear of the car was a bed—not a bunk, but a bed, springs, mattress, sheets, pillow in pillow case, and everything.

Mr. Jeffery is a bachelor, and no mean housekeeper, either, for everything is kept spick and span. He declared he was having the time of his life, jogging around wherever fancy dictated, and at no time worrying about rain or dust or finding a good camping spot, since he was equipped to meet all conditions.

INDIAN SKELETONS FOUND

Delaware Hill Believed to Have Been Site of Battle and Burial.

An old Indian burying ground, with skeletons in an excellent state of preservation, was found the other day at the Baltimore Young Men's Christian association camp, on Rehoboth Beach, Del., by Prof. Marvin H. Markle of Baltimore.

The first grave was found at the top of a hill where the recent rains had washed the sand from the face of the hill, showing a cross section of the grave. Some of the bones turned to dust when touched, and many are in a crumbly condition, while ten teeth were found, nine being perfect. A small metal piece was found near the skull, on which was a rude etching of a bear in a sitting position.

Later more skeletons were found, and several tomahawks and spear heads. It is believed the hill was the site of a battle in which Delaware Indians took part, and where the warriors were buried after the battle. The skeletons are evidently those of young men.

Hundreds of visitors are inspecting the cliff, which has been carefully fenced off from souvenir hunters.

SHIP JOLTS BEAR TO DECK

Boat Knocks Animal From Iceberg to Cabin Roof, but Bruin Dives.

When a ship hits an iceberg, taken up a polar bear and dislodged him from his cozy bed, so that he strikes the deck with an angry "woof" and dives overboard without even staying to breakfast. It is time for a "movie" camera to be aboard.

All this took place on the steamship Charles of the Kerr line. The ship was proceeding at reduced speed in a heavy fog, when she brought up with a bang against a large iceberg.

The ship struck just under an overhang, and the whole mass of her weighing about 100 tons, crashed down on deck. The bear came with it. Bruin did not wait to see what damage had been done, but jumped over the side into the water. The ship reached port.

Man's Self Trying to Stretch Neck.

Physicist culture literature, describing the methods of neck stretching, is being used in some cases, Charles N. R. R. has been seen in a room in his room while attempting to apply one of the lessons.

The Fourth Dimension.

The fourth dimension is merely a mathematical speculation. It is assumed to be the property of matter that should be in solid as well as in planes. Mathematical investigations are made on the assumption of an indefinite number of dimensions.

LAY'S SATURDAY SALE

Public interest was displayed at this market in a very extraordinary degree last Saturday, from the moment the doors were opened in the morning. The offerings were remarkable from the standpoint of value, and this week they are equally attractive. But, what impressed visitors to whom our week-end sales are unfamiliar was the confidence—the belief—in this business which produced such immediate and large responsiveness. Those who were strangers will come again, with old friends, and we are anxious to see as many new faces. Surely if highest meat qualities and fairest prices count for anything, we shall see another big crowd here Saturday.

FAVOR WOMEN AS CHURCH DEACONS

The Presbytery of North River met in Amenia, Dutchess county, on Monday and Tuesday. The Rev. Joseph Woodman Babbitt of Newburgh was elected moderator for another year. Elder A. Lincoln J. Miller of Union Church and Elder George G. Peck of Calvary Church were elected trustees of Presbytery for three years.

The Presbytery by a large majority voted for the General Assembly overture which would make women eligible to the office of deacons in Presbyterian Churches. It voted against the overture which would elect commissioners to the General Assembly for a two year term, dividing them into classes of the delegation was large enough in each presbytery.

David De Boer, a bachelor of divinity, called as pastor to the Marlborough Church, was examined for ordination and will be ordained at Marlborough on October 31, at 8 p. m.

A solemn prayer service was held at the Tuesday morning session for the recovery of a lad of 13 years who was struck down by an automobile while chasing a ball, the public school being opposite the church, in the sight of some members of Presbytery, who were gathered on the church lawn awaiting the opening of the morning session, and some of whom carried his body off the highway. The boy died in an hour. Presbytery took up a large offering for flowers for his funeral.

The Rev. Dr. C. G. Ellis and Frank R. Rowley represented the Rondout Presbyterian Church at the session.

BOSS THE CREMONA SECRET?

Idea Put Forward That Varnish and Resin Were Used in Filling of Old Violins

M. C. Holcomb, musical instrument maker of Newark, Ohio, believes he is making rapid advances in his efforts to discover the secret of the fine mellow tone of the Cremona violins. Musicians for years have wondered why many old Italian violins apparently made in a slipshod manner, should produce such clear sounds.

Holcomb believes that the lost secret had to do mainly with the filler and varnish. Not long ago he was informed that a careful chemical analysis had been made of some of the finish on an old violin owned in Battle Creek, Mich.

This examination disclosed the fact that, before the varnish was applied, the wood was filled evidently with the yolk of an egg and beeswax. Prodding by this information, Holcomb rubbed these substances into the raw wood of a new violin before applying the varnish. The results were surprising, the instrument producing a tone that is usually associated with age.

Holcomb, by using tops of old tables and other furniture, obtains maple wood one hundred years or more old. Through a microscope it can be seen that in maple properly aged the cells are devoid of the sap and resin that makes improperly seasoned wood unsatisfactory.

Holcomb has found out that, if varnish is applied to a violin before a proper filler has been used, the varnish penetrates the cells of the wood and injures the tone.

NO LONGER "CLINGING VINE"

Athletic and a Healthy Outdoor Life Have Increased the Weight of Modern Woman.

There's building 'em bigger. Dress-makers say so, corsetiers agree there's something in it, and now along comes cold, calculating science to explain why women weigh more than they ever did before.

Women are no fatter, say the physical culture experts. They're simply larger, and here's the reason: The women of today are one and a half inches taller as a class than 40 years ago. Their chests are larger, their waistlines have widened. Their muscles have hardened. All this makes them weigh more.

The changes, according to those who have made a study of the subject, are simple enough to explain. Women, especially during the last 20 years or so, gradually have been converted from the clinging vine to robust persons who are proud rather than ashamed of the physical feats they can accomplish. Participation in sports has turned the trick.

"Time was," explained William Herrmann, a physical training expert of Philadelphia, "when a woman thought vigorous use of the body and its muscles was unladylike. All that has changed, of course, and the gradual participation of women in sports and various forms of exercise actually has brought about a change in her height and her figure. The change in height is not simply a case of athletics having taught a woman to stand straighter. It is an actual change that can be measured."

Montgomery's Danish Tree.

Montgomery, Cal., is a proud of its Danish tree as residents of the lower Boston valley are of Anthony's corn. This celebrated curiosity is formed of two corn cobs, so that their foliage seems to be that of corn; and the shape of it, together with the peculiar style of which the two branches are placed, gives the appearance of a large and ancient Danish stork standing on its legs. The tree is now in full leaf and the picture is shown on a large board of wood running out into the water of the Pacific.

How a Girl Scout Earns Her Dollar

DARNING stockings may sound like hard work, but it is fun to the Girl Scout who is earning her dollar for Girl Scout Thrift Week, October 16th to 24th.

There are so many girls who want to be Scouts that the national organization, 189 Lexington Avenue, New York, has called for help. "And so the Girl Scouts all over the country are putting into practice the things they have learned to do through Scouting."

Some girls are doing the family darning, like this girl in the picture. Other girls are washing dishes, blacking shoes, polishing brasses, running errands, taking care of babies or doing any of the thousand and one things they know how to do. Most of the year they do these things without asking pay, for the Girl Scout slogan is, "Do a Good Turn Daily." But the Girl Scouts all over the country are putting into practice the things they have learned to do through Scouting.

Life Demands the Best One Has.

The best substitute for genius, if such a thing is possible, is honest, consistent effort. Put the best you have into your life and the product will bear the character stamp that will regulate the price mark. You rise to meet to genius when your output is nearest perfection. That means unrelenting toil. This is within every man's reach if he is willing to use the means at his command. Give the world the best products and you will win the name of genius without making a bid for it. Rewards come to those who serve without the incentive of reward. They breed genius—Gift.

Edward F. Searles, Howard Donnell, Arthur Walker

A resident of Methuen, Mass., has written anonymously to District Attorney Donnell, of Essex county, urging exhumation and an autopsy on the body of the late Edward F. Searles, aged eccentric, who died in his mansion, in Methuen, in August 1920. Searles left the bulk of his estate to Arthur T. Walker, of New York, for many years secretary to Searles. Petrified Forest in Arizona.

The petrified forest is in the midst of the great desert of Arizona. These trees are of a non-ferrous, extinct species, with the exception of a single outstanding trunk. They lie prone upon the ground as they drifted in a prehistoric sea. Water-logged and heavy, they sank to the bottom, and were there covered with sand and changed into shrouded. The sand hardened and cemented into stone and slowly rose above the waters. The stone forest lay hidden from view for countless ages. By slow abatement, then the hardened rock was all washed away and the petrified area, being south border and more durable, was left scattered in dense profusion on the surface of the earth, where they had so long lain buried.

Diamond Wedding Anniversary.

The number of years allotted to the diamond anniversary varies in different countries. In the Scandinavian countries 60 years is fixed as the diamond wedding, while in Italy, 70 years constitutes a diamond wedding, and the sovereign of that country is wont to testify his interest in the happiness of any couple in his kingdom who have dwelt together in holy wedlock for 30 years by some token of royal favor. A well-known writer states that various authorities declare that 70 years, before a sacred period, the three score and ten years allowed by the psalmist as the age of man on earth, should be regarded as the period of a true diamond wedding.

abandoned that plan and had placed at the disposal of the committee the state boat for use on the barge canal trip. Others of privately owned boats had been received from various owners, some of whom had accompanied their offer with a contribution to help defray the expense. The first step of the journey, from New York to Albany, would be made on October 17, on the steamer of the Hudson River Day Line, which had at once proffered the use of its boat for the Hudson river trip; the Albany Chamber of Commerce had kindly offered to entertain the visitors over night and at breakfast the following morning, and other communities along the route had invited the visitors to stay with them. Thus the first step had been taken in the movement to educate the great west. But the matter had a wider aspect than merely the development of waterways. Money must be raised and infinite details arranged. Money was essential but was the smallest of the considerations. The committee wanted to show the visitors not only what kind of waterways we have but also what kind of people we are. Kingston had promptly raised more than its quota of the expense fund, and other Chambers had simply referred the request to the officers and stated that the amount would be sent. One large company had offered the use of any or all of its fleet of boats on the barge canal.

A. V. S. Olcott, general manager of the Hudson River Day Line, spoke briefly, saying he was glad to take care of the party and hoped it would be representative. He felt that the Day Line had much to do in connecting up the various communities now represented in the Federated Chamber of Commerce.

Treasurer's Report.
The treasurer's report showed a balance in the treasury of $549.66. Secretary Hudson called attention to the fact that certain changes in the constitution and by-laws would be necessary in connection with the plans already adopted and proposed, and on his motion the president was authorized to appoint a committee to prepare amendments to the constitution and by-laws, to be submitted to a referendum of the constituent members.

The matter of place for holding the December meeting with left to the executive committee with power. Newburgh invited the Federated Chamber to meet there. Greenvale, in a humorous speech, said Cornwall-on-Hudson had intended to extend an invitation but would defer it. He was convinced that the number of people in the United States who do not know what they are talking about was increasing.

The credential committee reported an attendance of 168 members. The credential committee reported resolutions of thanks to the Kingston Chamber of Commerce, Mayor Canfield, of the Y. M. C. SHOKAN.

Shokan, Oct. 6.—The Rev. and Mrs. Frank D. Blanchard motored here last week for a couple of days from Rhinebeck, where Mr. Blanchard is now pastor of the Reformed church. While here they were most completely and happily surprised by a reception given by the members of the church, friends and neighbors, in the church parlors. Delightful refreshments were served and a very happy evening was enjoyed by all.

HEROIC EPISODE OF GREAT WAR

Thrilling Story of the Avocet's Desperate Fight for Life.

MENACED BY GERMAN FOE

Little Cargo Tramp Steamer Attacked by Three Airplanes and Driven Among Mine Fields as She Avoided Her Enemy of the Air—Captain Killed on the Bridge After Cleverly Outmaneuvering His Attacker—Son Carries on.

The indomitable spirit of merchant sailors, combined with their mastery of seamanship, were responsible for many heroic episodes in the great war, some of which are only just being brought to light, says the Montreal Herald.

A thrilling tale was told of the dinky little cargo tramp steamer Avocet attacked by three airplanes and driven among mine fields as she avoided her foe of the air.

Bound from Rotterdam to England, with land still on the horizon, three German planes sailed out of Belgium bent on her destruction. Two of them were tiny scouts, but the third was of the type used to fly across the channel and bomb London.

The first bomb aimed at the Avocet missed its mark by about fifteen feet. Altogether she was pelted with thirty-five of them, some escaping crashing on her decks miraculously. The big bombing plane especially was handled with great skill. For it would fly over from stem to stern in order to have her full length for a target and not just her beam only. But each time it laid a course parallel to her length her officers would swing her out of the line. And while this maneuver was going on the two scout planes kept flying across her, dropping bombs.

Fought Airplanes with Rifles.
Only a few rifles had the Avocet's crew to fight their foes with. Yet with them they managed to maintain such a constant fire that none of the airplanes dared to descend low enough to make sure of a hit. Even distress signal rockets were used, and the chief officer was fortunate enough to explode one within a few feet of the battle plane, driving it to a higher altitude. For half an hour the fight lasted, with the Avocet zigzagging to dodge the dropping bombs and constantly being in danger of striking mines. Furthermore, the big plane turned its machine gun on the ship, hoping thereby to kill the officers or drive them to cover, so that being no longer so cleverly navigated the Avocet would become an easier mark to hit.

When the planes finally gave it up and flew away the ship's decks were littered with shrapnel. Yet nobody was killed or even wounded. The lookout man in the bow stuck to his post throughout and actually reported to the bridge a floating mine dead ahead while the fight was at its hottest. So much for the air attack.

As to submarine attack, the first case of the peppering of an unarmed merchant ship with shrapnel was that of the Anglo-Californian. It happened on July 4, 1915—just two months after the Lusitania.

The first intimation that her commander, Capt. Parslow had that his ship was in for an unusual experience was when the "U" boat came to the surface, fired a shell into the ship and repeated the dose in rapid succession. Captain Parslow tried to escape, but on the surface the submarine proved to be possessed of greater speed than the heavily laden cargo boat, and it wasn't long before things began to look pretty blue.

Finding that he could not escape, Captain Parslow adopted the tactics of a cornered animal, manuevering his ship, keeping her bow always pointed at the enemy so that even though she was being constantly shelled the submarine could not hit her with a torpedo. Round and round the Anglo-Californian the "U" boat steamed, blazing away with her gun as she sought to get into position where she could deal a death blow. Frequently she came so close that men on her deck raked the Anglo-Californian with rifle fire.

Captain Killed on Bridge.

Throughout it all, in spite of bursting shrapnel raining death about him, Captain Parslow stood on the bridge and outmaneuvered his attacker. Finally a shot struck the bridge itself. The concussion killed Captain Parslow outright. His son, the second officer, who was also on the bridge, though knocked down, was not hurt. As the "U" boat was then close in and using rifle fire, young Parslow crawled across the shell-torn flooring of the bridge, grabbed the spokes of the steering wheel and, keeping an eye on the enemy through holes in the canvas about the bridge rail, manuevered the Anglo-Californian as cleverly as his father had done. A shower of shell broke some of the spokes of the wheel, but the younger Parslow still carried on until, four hours after the fight began, destroyers appeared, and the "U" boat was forced to seek safety by submerging.

Brothers Separated Forty-Six Years.

The Invention.
To be ambitious of true honor, of the true glory and perfection of our nature, is the very incentive of the true but to be ambitious of titles, of place, of ceremonial respect and such pleasures, is to walk and stride as the things are which we court.—Sir Philip Sidney.

In the Quaint Scotch Village of Thrums

There once was a lad who lived in a world of brave imaginings. Who walked with his head in the skies and found a hundred foes to fight for his "lady fair."

But this lady fair was only a painted lady's child—a little wistful lass who "wanted so to be respectable."

And as the years rolled by—

THE OFFICE CAT

By Janice

We Have With Us Today.

In awarding the velvet-handled cream puff opener for the best joke of the week, we feel constrained to select the following as our choice, with due credit to the Washington Star, from whence it came:

"Unemployment is a great problem." "It is," replied the radical agitator. "Unemployment by itself is easy enough to learn. The hard part of the proposition is to make it pay."

Some people cannot understand why Fat Arbuckle is charged with manslaughter when he killed a woman.

Grover Cleveland Bergdoll, our eminent and widely suspected draft dodger, is writing a book. Getting under cover again, eh, Grover!

We know a lot of men who never would think of talking to themselves, who spend most of their time talking about themselves.

The Substitute Doctor.

"I'm in a quandary. Dr. Flivver turned over his practice to me in a hurry. He told me to question the patients and then continue the treatment."

"Well?" "Most of the men patients claim to have been getting hooch prescriptions."

It takes more than a clove to disguise the breath of suspicion.

When the modern daughter is feeling especially gracious she is willing to concede that her mother is a "nice old thing."

"Money makes the mare go," was the old proverb, but it's the city council that keeps the mayor going.

Once a year we print a fall classic. Here it is:

Our Palm Beach suit has got the chills.

Our straw hat's got the ager: There's frost upon Miranda's frills

And icy thoughts enrage her. We'll have to work that camouflage,

And thus appease her mighty rage. Or else give up our summer's wage.

And with new duds assuage her.

A woman may defend her no-account husband before her friends, but she surely does not miss any words in telling her husband what she thinks of having to do it.

You remember the passionate printer, who advertised in the paper that he wanted girls to fold, and the tailor who wanted girls to press. All right. We see where a feller is advertising for girls for stuffing, and with food prices what they are he must be a millionaire.

Old Mother Hubbard went to the cupboard to get her poor daughter a dress. But when she got there the cupboard was bare, and so was her daughter, I guess.

If a man would do without lunches a few weeks he could save enough to make a substantial payment on a river.

Friend—How's the mining scheme?

Promoter—We took $50,000 out last month.

Friend—Out of the mine?

Promoter—No: out of the stockholders.

Representative Kiesel would have congressmen paid on an attendance basis. Why not pay them by the word—so much for every word they don't see?

Times will be better when perspiration is not confined to the golf links.

Science wins again

You want the Vitamine in Yeast
Here it is—in a tiny tablet

THOUSANDS of almost miraculous cures and countless ailments heretofore considered incurable have yielded to Vitamines that new found element in food so often destroyed by modern cooking.

Babies grow fat, strong, robust, when given the Vitamines in orange juice each day, in addition to milk. . . . Children show astonishing improvement when fed a quart of milk daily in addition to their meals.

Adults need even more Vitamines, yet a meal of Roast Beef, Baked Potatoes, Bread and Butter, Apple Dumpling with hard sauce and coffee fails to satisfactorily nourish the body for lack of Vitamines. You weaken, lack disease resistance, fall heir to countless minor ills—all easily banished with the wonderful Vitamines.

The Gift of Science to You

Now comes a highly concentrated tablet containing a proper dose of "Vitamin B" from yeast; Fat Soluble "A" "Vitamin" from Rice Hulls, combined with Glycophosphates, Cascarine and Capsicum—A tablet easily taken, in ideal form, very economical and results most unusual, when taken in addition to regular diet.

Daddy's Evening Fairy Tale

BY MARY GRHAM BOWEN

BLACK SWALLOWTAILS

"I want to tell you something of our family history," said Mrs. Black Swallowtail to the other Swallowtails.

"Of course, any one who knows anything about Swallowtails will know that we aren't swallows with tails, or birds with tails, but we are butterflies."

"I suppose everyone who knows anything about swallows knows that they have tails. But what I meant was that we aren't swallows at all, with or without tails."

"We are butterflies, nice, big, handsome butterflies. We are known pretty well for we are seen about a great deal. We are very dark in color, so we are called the Black Swallowtails."

"Black suits are very neat in appearance, we think. Then we have golden spots on our wings and touches of reddish spots and purple spots, too."

"We can be seen flying about in the summertime, and we love the flowers which are wild and the flowers which are tame."

"The flowers which are wild don't behave in a wild manner at all. They are very well behaved. But they grow in fields and along country roads and in woods. They are flowers which aren't looked after by people as the tame flowers are."

"The tame flowers aren't very tame. They are just regular flowers. But they're different from the wild flowers, for they grow in gardens and they are looked after by people. They are very carefully cared for and watered by watering pots or by a hose, and they are kept free from all weeds."

"Now a Mother Swallowtail lays down her eggs with great care upon wild parsley or upon carrots, right on the nice leafy part of a plant."

"The eggs only stay like that for a few days, perhaps two weeks at the most, and then they become nice little black caterpillars wearing white belts."

"Then these tiny caterpillars eat up the leaves they've been using as their beds."

"That shows how sensible they are and how they make use of things."

"People can't do such things. People have to get extra food and cannot eat their beds after they have arisen in the mornings."

"It may be true that they want to eat their beds for another night's rest, or for sleeping in for a great many nights. But one would think they would be able to find other beds later on. If they wanted them, and would simply eat their beds right away to save worry and fussing."

"It's very convenient to get up and say: 'Ah, I'm ready for breakfast.' And then to find one's bed will do beautifully as a breakfast."

"Then the caterpillars begin to moult and they do this several times. 'Later they wear green suits with black lines about the suits, and upon these lines are smart yellow spots.'"

"These caterpillars are seen very often. I'm sure most creatures have seen them."

"They're not in the least shy and don't mind who sees them."

"When these caterpillars grow to their full size and have become grown-up caterpillars, they change once more into the chrysalis shape."

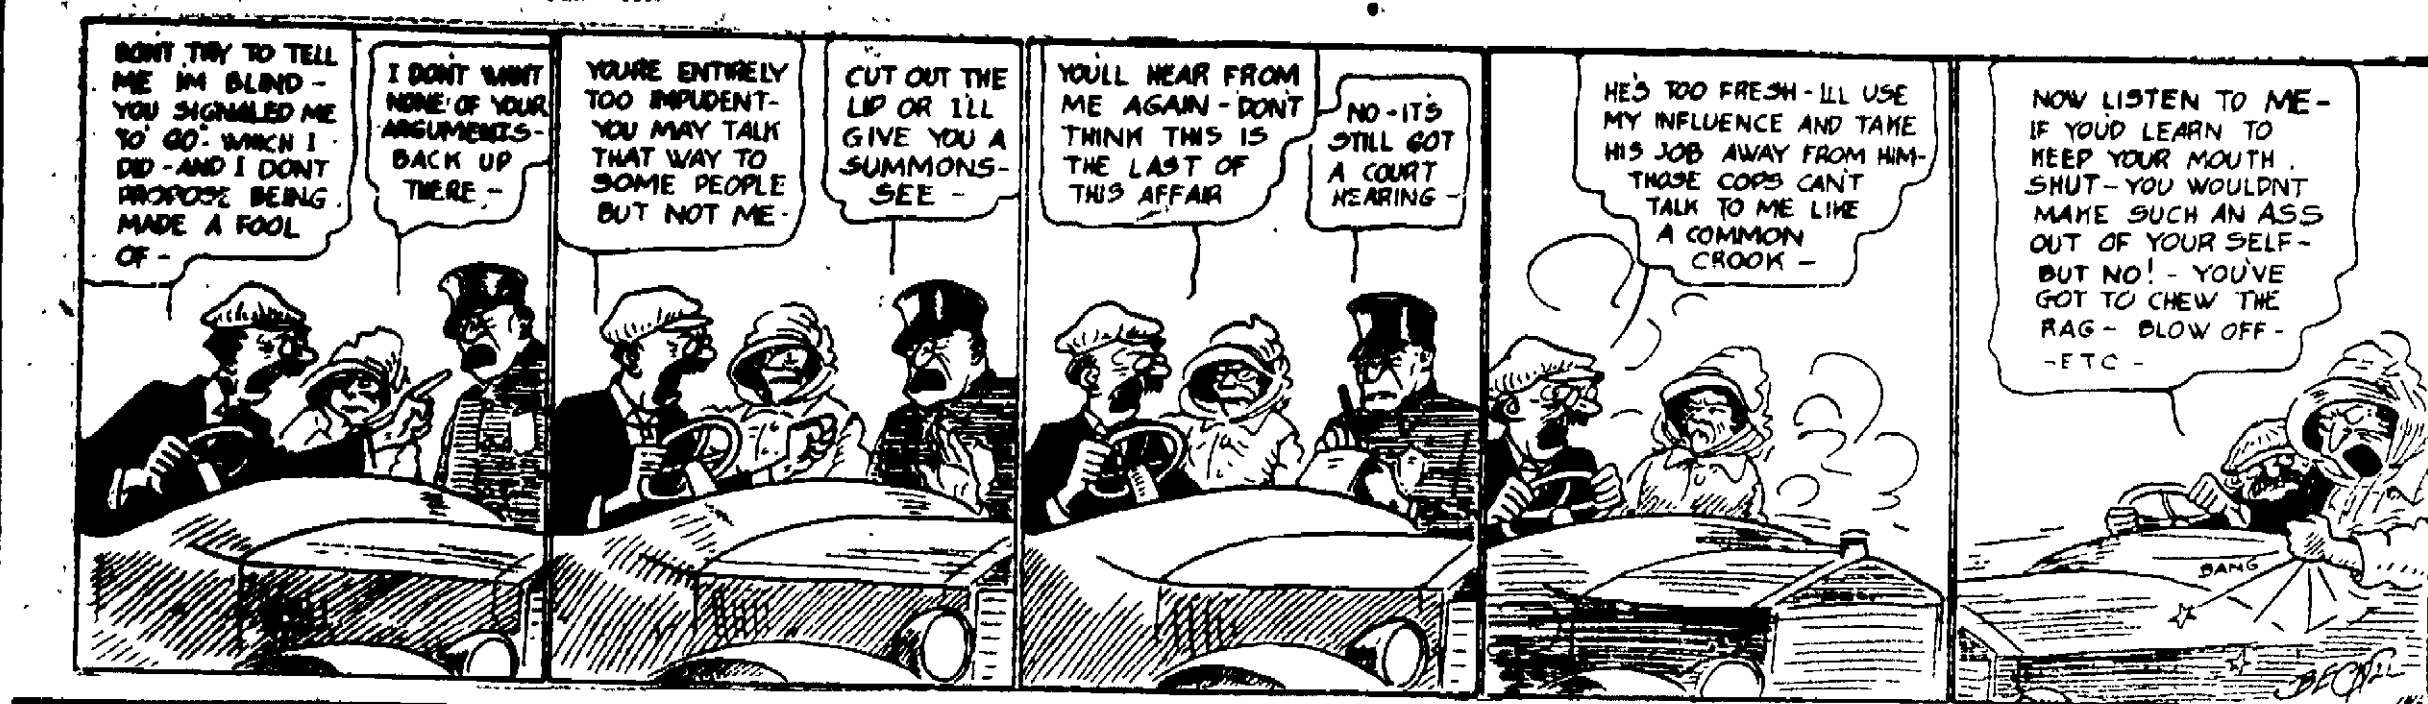

"They go to a safe or any other nice home, and they spin themselves beds of silk and also spin them so they can be attached to the place they've decided to call home for a time."

"And then they change into their chrysalis state and they are ready to be butterflies."

"You have, young Swallowtails, been in the chrysalis state all winter long. But now you are butterflies, and you will fly off to the delicious drinks that are to be found in the flowers."

"And when creatures see you, they will know that you are the Black Swallowtails and that you have had all these interesting adventures, changing your suits and your shapes and your homes."

WAYS WITH POTATOES.

With hundreds of ways of serving potatoes, the average housewife will confine her family to a dozen or two, thinking she thus has a large variety.

It costs some thought to keep going during the summer, but the results are worth the effort, which affords a relief from monotony.

Sautéing Potatoes.—Peel the potatoes and slice on a slicer in small strips; when three are prepared cook them in boiling salted water twenty minutes.

Drain in two tablespoonfuls of fat two small onions chopped, two teaspoonfuls of mixed herbs. Add two tablespoonfuls of flour, then when well mixed add a pint of milk, two teaspoonfuls of salt and plenty of pepper to season. Cook twenty minutes.

Strain and pour over the cooked potatoes. Sprinkle with cheese and serve. The cheese may be omitted if not desired.

Franconia potatoes are universally well liked. Peel, halve and parboil for five minutes, then place around the roast, basting until a golden brown.

Spanish Potatoes.—Peel and boil in salted water until the potatoes are done. In the vegetable dish place two tablespoonfuls of butter and one of minced onion for each half dozen small potatoes. Turn in the well-drained potatoes and chop with a knife, mixing well; season with pepper and serve hot.

Armenian Potatoes.—Take one-fourth of a cupful of oil, one quart of diced raw potatoes, one-fourth cupful of tomato pulp, one-half cupful of water, one and one-half teaspoonfuls of salt, one teaspoonful of paprika, one clove of garlic peeled and sliced, one tablespoonful of minced parsley. Mix in the order given and bake in a moderate oven for forty minutes.

Cream of Cheese Soup.—Take one quart of milk, one tablespoonful of onion, one-quarter of a cupful of butter, two tablespoonfuls of finely-minced carrot, two tablespoonfuls of flour, one blade of mace, one-half cupful of grated cheese, pepper, salt to taste and, added last, the yolks of two well beaten eggs. Serve at once.

To Make Rich Red Blood

Revitalize your worn-out exhausted nerves and increase your strength and endurance

Take Nuxated Iron: not metallic iron which people usually take, but pure organic iron—Nuxated Iron—which is like the iron in your blood and like the iron in spinach, lentils and apples. One dose of Nuxated Iron is estimated to be approximately equivalent (in organic iron content) to eating one-half quart of spinach, one quart of green vegetables or half a dozen apples. It is like taking extract of beef instead of eating pounds of meat. Nuxated Iron is partially predigested and ready for almost immediate absorption and assimilation by the blood while metallic iron is just as it comes from the action of strong acids on small pieces of iron filings.

Over 4,000,000 people annually are using Nuxated Iron. It will not injure the teeth nor disturb the stomach. A few doses will often commence to enrich your blood. Your money will be refunded if the manufacturers if you do not obtain satisfactory results.

Beware of substitutes. Always insist on having genuine organic iron—Nuxated Iron. Look for the letters N. I. on every tablet. Sold by all druggists.

NEW YORK HAS $100,000 FIRE

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

New York, Oct. 7.—A stubborn blaze in a five story Broadway building facing city hall park knocked out 15 firemen, three so seriously that they could not return to duty, and did $100,000 damage early today.

Firemen Charles Hennessy and John Bronleden, were almost drowned in three feet of water in the cellar when they were overcome by smoke. They were rescued by firemen, six of whom were overcome but were able to go back to duty. Broadway traffic was held up for hours.

ON-A-JOB, OFF-A-JOB JIM!

Being a Story

Of how Jim got on a job and why he got off it again.

Jim was growing desperate. Again and again he had been turned down at the various workshops where he had sought employment. "I'll have to go back to selling something," Jim was thinking, as he witnessed a woman tearing down the diphtheria sign that had been tacked on her door. "Hope that means a full recovery," Jim said to her solicitously. "It does that," returned the woman "after eight weeks of the worst sickness a body can have, my little daughter is up and about. She's a living skeleton, that's what she is, but she's got all of the poison out of her body now. Thank God!"

"I suppose you are planning to have the house fumigated," "That's what. Although I called up the doctor, he put me off, saying he couldn't be down until the morning."

"Where is he?" asked Jim, thinking that he might be able to get the job, and after hearing his address, he hastened to the doctor's office. "I wish you'd give me the job, if you are too busy. The fumigating ought to be done at once."

"Do you know how to do it?" "I've had experience with formaldehyde," He didn't add that he had done the job only once when there was sickness in the college dormitory.

Glad to be relieved of the task, the doctor gave Jim his spraying outfit and sent him back to the house, to the room where the sick patient had been. He covered the doors and windows with strips in order to keep in the fumes of the disinfectant.

Before leaving the house, he called up his employer and gained the promise of a similar job for the next day. Then he turned to the little girl who had been sick. She was thin and emaciated, almost without life as she sat by the window listlessly watching the children playing outside.

"What would you like more than anything else, Mamie?" Jim asked, his heart filling with pity. "I'd like to go to the beach where I could see the boats going by and the waves tossing over the stones." Jim longed to gain possession of his uncle's money. What a lot he could do with it! His first dividend would go to help such people as Mamie. At present he was penniless, but his friends were not. At once he thought of Eva Harlin, the softest hearted of his former acquaintances, who, with her home at the beach, her car and her servants, might be willing to give Mamie one day of her time.

He telephoned to her at once, hardly daring to hope: overjoyed with her cordial response, "Jimmy, I don't know where you've been keeping yourself or what you have been doing, but I'm sure glad to hear your voice. Of course, I'll do anything you wish. And don't give another thought about Mamie. There's plenty of room for her here."

Sympathetic Childhood.

Lately, in a garden not far from Roston, the lord of the manor set a trap to catch the woodchucks that were monopolizing his vegetables. Instead of serving its purpose, the trap caught a neighboring family cat by the paw, and nobody dared to release the agonized animal—until two little children came along. Hearing the cries of the cat, one of the children gently patted the cat, while the other opened the jaws of the trap and released poor kitty. The incident serves to illustrate the fearlessness of sympathetic childhood in relieving distress.

Novelist Lost Vague.

During the deluge of "Fables" Mrs. Southworth's name as a novel-writer declined, but the older generation, or the older generations, remained faithful to her and her books sold well. Mrs. Southworth had furnished much entertainment for young and old people for more than fifty years, but there came a time when age forced her to restrict her output. At least two of her novels were published after her death, and during her life and after its close many of her stories were republished, and there were numerous "new editions."

Going So.

"Mildred's name" was in the area that service during the war, was he not?

"Yes, and I'll never forget that he will establish a new ground for attitude during when he discovers how much it costs to keep Mildred in clothes." Judge.

M. E. CONFERENCE HELD AT ROXBURY

Probably Only One of Kind in East—
W. H. Anderson Voted Complete Approval of Governor Miller—Especially Good Sermons and Address.

"If we leave the country to go to the town, we go to run the town," said the Rev. John MacNeill, D. D., of Fort Washington, Presbyteria
Church of New York city in the closing sermon of the Kingston District Conference Tuesday evening at Roxbury Methodist Episcopal Church.
The sermon, overflowing with human and inspirational interest, surpassed all expectations in its power to make God, the Bible and Christian living practical in human affairs. As such it was the fitting climax of a wonder-day of instruction and fellowship, under the direction of district superintendent, the Rev. George W. Grinton.
This is the thoroughbred district conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church to be found in the New York area, if not anywhere in the east.

Dr. MacNeill's expository sermon was based upon the story of Elisha, and his students in the school of the prophets, who, when their number had increased beyond the capacity of their quarters, proposed to go to the Jordan, each to cut a beam for the building of an added place, and when the axehead of one of the workers flew into the Jordan, the prophet made it to swim with the help of a long stick, in helping the student to get it from the river. II Kings 5:1-7.

"When I was a boy," said Dr. Mac-Neill, "you took your Bibles to church to check up the minister—and they didn't need it. Now you don't take your Bibles to church, and as to the ministers—I'm not so sure."

"Why should it be deemed incredible that God should raise the dead—whether it be the dead axehead that swam, or the dead bodies from their graves, or for your dead souls, to awake into prayer and penitence and righteous living?"

Dr. MacNeill was eight years in the railway service in Scotland, had every promotion, and was all prosperous, when it became as dust and ashes to him in comparison to preaching the gospel. In his first parish a Scotch woman said to him, "If the Lord will keep you humble, we'll keep you poor." In speaking of the ministry he said, "It never starved me. To be frank about it, God made it up to me."

"To be a true Christian is to follow one greater than Elisha and David and Paul and all the other great ones
all gilded up into one—Jesus Christ."

Remarking upon the question,
"Each arrived at heaven in his boots," Dr. MacNeill said, "There's a word for you farmers who are trying to get there in a flivver."

"If you think there's anything wrong with you, don't wait for evolution to make it right. It's too slow for New Yorkers."

In referring to taking questions of philosophy and science to clergymen,
he said, "The ministers will tell you,
but even then you can't expect them to tell you everything for ten cents."

"We can teach like God, if we will only sit down and be teachable?"

"Go right when you are wrong.
Don't say, it will come right in the end. It won't come right in the end.
It will come wronger. Some say, it will all come right if you are in earnest. To be wrong in earnest, and is always earnest, and he is all wrong."

"Testing things by this one thing, the connection between the axe-head
and the re handle."

Ministers are often asked the questions, "Can't I be a Christian and dance? Can't I go to the theatre and be a Christian?" Dr. MacNeill's replies to such, "I'm not your priest?
What are you pestering me for?
Haven't you the privilege of prayer?"

"The war is staked out for you, roped out and there are no short cuts."

Second day to Dr. MacNeill's remarkable sermon, preached to a crowded house with one hundred chairs brought in, and with standing room all over, was the symposium on evangelism by twenty Kingston district pastors. It was a feast of rich, practical, and inspiring experiences.
Every man as present to answer to his topic view of the ministers is superior to that of any instruction as to the how the pastor's work given in theological seminaries. It is no wonder the Kingston district churches are well manned with enthusiastic men when such loyalty between district superintendent and pastors produces such a Pentecost of a district conference.

Rev. Allan MacRae, D. D., of New York at 11:00 a. m. gave a thrilling address on the demand and the plans for the highest standards of education in the ministry. After a resolution of appreciation was voted to Dr. MacRae, Dr. Dent, in giving the Centenary address, expressed that the Centenary made possible the commission on courses of study which, under the directorship of Dr. Mac-Rae, was promoting the more acceptable educational plans.

The Rev. William H. Quinn and the Rev. George F. Wells as the newly appointed pastors at Dormansville and Pine Hill were introduced.

Dr. Grinton paid a high tribute to the committee on examination of local preachers, especially to the chairman, the Rev. T. H. Baragwan-ath, and secretary, the Rev. P. C.
Weyant, both of Kingston.

William H. Anderson of the New York Anti-Saloon League felt very much at home among the delegates at the district conference. He said of Governor Miller, "He has made good in everything he promised. He has made good absolutely." He made a strong plea for more members for the Allied Citizens of America.

Professor C. O. DuBois speaking on "Co-operation of Rural Forces," said that as corn in the central west builds churches, in Delaware and neighboring counties cows build churches. He made a plea for the church and the school to help farm people to play together in order to learn how to market and work together.

The Rev. W. S. Maggs as conference evangelist was present and took the devotional and music of the conference most attractively a leading part in ference. The Rev. W. B. Chandler and the entertaining church at Roxbury have the gratitude of all the delegates and visitors.

Pain Is The Sentinel of Life, The Stern Guardian Angel Who Shields Us From Destruction

Pain is an indication of disease, the cause of which is a direct or indirect violation of one or more Natural laws. Removal of the cause eliminates the pain.

For example: Pain in your feet or back would indicate that you have flat arches or subluxated (partly dislocated) vertebrae, causing pressure on nerves. Temporary relief may be obtained in various ways, but permanent cure only by removing the cause.

My system of adjusting the feet or spine differ from ordinary methods in a: and is the result of more than 20 years of continuous practice. Examination and consultation free.

LIGHTNING'S VOLTAGE

Fifty Times Man's Best Effort, Says Steinmetz.

By Telegraph to The Freeman. Schenectady, Oct. 7.—Only in the last few years has science become able to understand and explain the phenomena of the thunderstorm, to calculate the voltage and the energy of the lightning flash, and "finally we have been able to reproduce lightning experimentally in our laboratory," said Dr. Charles P. Steinmetz at a dinner of the Kiwanis Club here.

He said the voltage of a lightning flash is usually between 20,000,000 and 100,000,000 volts, averaging 50,000,000 volts. Dr. Steinmetz continued: "It is hard to conceive what 1,000,000 volts means. Five hundred volts will kill a man. 'We are sending electric power across the country at 200,000 volts. Thus in the forty years since Edison's first installation we have increased the voltage a thousandfold. We have produced and played with over 1,000,000 volts, and the voltage of the thundercloud is only fifty times higher than what man has produced.'"
